the Seven Secrets to Happiness

Everyone has a different idea of what happiness is, but most of us want to be happier. So, what can we learn from looking at the habits of happy people? Here are seven things to make you happy.

1 Sleep More Most people don't get enough sleep. If you want to feel good about life, then try to sleep for at least seven hours a night.

2 Exercise You don't need to run for 20 mi. or go to the gym every night, but a small amount of exercise will help you feel happy. Go for a short (10–15 minute) walk somewhere beautiful. It wakes up your brain.

3 Give to Others Research shows that giving money or time to help others makes you feel happier. Buying someone an unexpected present or spending some time doing volunteer work will give you a feeling of joy.

4 Be Interested Love what you do and try to learn something new. People who are curious and learn new things experience feelings of satisfaction and happiness.

5 Spend Time with Family and Friends This is probably the most important thing you can do. People who have a strong network of social relationships are not just happier; they live longer, too!

6 Focus on the Moment Try to find opportunities each day to enjoy the small things in life. Spend a little time on your own and just enjoy the moment.

7 Smile! Smile more (even when you're feeling sad). Smiling can actually make you feel better. People who post big smiley photos of themselves on Facebook actually feel happier because they see the photo every day and it reminds them of happy times.

Danger Rating 6/10

Mountain rescue worker, Austria

Up in the mountains, the view is beautiful, but not for emergency doctor Martin Schmidt, paramedic Marius Adler and helicopter pilot Klaus Hartmann. Their job is to find and rescue people in trouble: climbers caught in an avalanche, injured skiers, even lost walkers. Reporter Lucy Rose met the team members and asked them about their work.

Adler says they love their jobs, but they sometimes get angry with the people they rescue. "Climbers always risk their lives, but, when they get into trouble, they also risk ours."

What exactly are the dangers? Hartmann says that, although the sun is shining today, they usually fly in much worse weather conditions, which can be very dangerous. Another problem is that, often, the people they rescue are frightened. They panic, and this makes it difficult for the team.

And what are the best things about the job? Hartmann says, "Saving lives is its own reward." And occasionally they get a surprise. "One time we rescued a woman after a skiing accident. She was badly hurt. Later her husband brought us a huge box of chocolates." The people they rescue, Schmidt explains, hardly ever say thank you!

I'm a personal trainer. I eat well, and I exercise a lot. I spend about five hours a day working with clients. In general, I think my work/life balance is good. I take time off every few months just to relax, and I rarely get stressed. Once in a while, I go out partying. For me, a balanced lifestyle is really important. When I was younger, I worried if I missed a day of exercise. These days I don't worry about it.

My only problem is the one-hour commute. I hate taking the train every day, and it's expensive. I'm planning to move so I can live near the gym where I work and walk to work every morning.

How the World Spends Its Free Time

1 Internet
People from Canada spend, on average, 43.5 hours per week online, 8 hours longer than people in the U.S., who come in second. One reason: Canada has long, cold winters, so people spend lots of time indoors.

2 Sports
Soccer is king. In second place, surprisingly, is cricket. Only a few nations play the game seriously, but it's very popular in India, which has 1.2 billion people.

3 Outdoors
New Zealanders spend the most time outdoors. The countryside is perfect for hiking, mountain climbing and water sports. If you live in New Zealand, you're never more than two hours' drive from the ocean. And then there is the rugby, too …

4 Bars
Spain has six bars per 1,000 inhabitants, easily the highest number. In Spain, a bar is for families, not just drinkers. It's a meeting place and often an eating place (try the tapas!).

5 Galleries and Museums
The U.K. has six of the top 20 most visited art galleries/museums in the world, including the National Gallery, the British Museum and Tate Modern.

What's called "football" in much of the world is called "soccer" in American English. American football is a quite different game!

6 TV
The biggest TV-watchers are in Thailand. They spend 22.4 hours a week watching TV. In second place comes the Philippines (21 hours) and, in third place, Egypt (20.9 hours), famous for its never-ending soap operas!

7 Party!
It's impossible to say who parties the most, but Brazil's annual carnival makes it a good choice. Some of the best cities for partying include Bangkok (friendly people, great nightclubs), Berlin (live music scene) and the island of Ibiza (dance music).

8 Exercising
The biggest exercisers are people from Greece and Estonia. Over 80 percent of people in those countries exercise regularly. In both countries, soccer and the Olympic sports are the most popular, but Estonia has one very special game: ice cricket!

1 THE ALTERNATIVE SCHOOL

The Alternative School, in Lancashire, U.K., offers a different type of schooling for young people who are having problems in mainstream education. The school offers an innovative and interesting educational program, which is designed specifically for the individual. Students can decide when they come to school and which subjects they want to study. They don't have to come to school every day. They can choose to start with just a few hours a week. The school uses an "open door" policy where students are allowed to leave classes if they are bored or unhappy.

2 THE FLIPPED CLASSROOM

Many classrooms around the world are adopting a flipped classroom approach. This learning model switches classroom learning and homework. In a traditional classroom, the teacher explains the lesson to the students in the classroom, and the students do homework outside class, where they have to work on their own and can't ask anyone for help. So, in a flipped classroom, children can watch a video of their teacher giving a lecture on the subject at home. They don't have to do any written work. When they come back to the classroom, they have to do the more traditional exercises, but they can ask the teacher or their classmates for help if they don't understand.

3 STARTING YOUNG

A child learning music with the Suzuki method has to start as young as possible. Even two-year-old children can learn to play difficult pieces of classical music, often on the violin. They do this by watching and listening. They learn by copying, just like they learn their mother tongue. The child has to join in, but doesn't have to get it right. "They soon learn that they don't have to stop every time they make a mistake. They just carry on," said one Suzuki trainer. The children have to practice for several hours every day, and they give performances once a week, so they learn quickly. "The parents must be involved, too," said the trainer, "or it just doesn't work."

Supersized Earth: The Way We Move

Dallas Campbell goes to the U.S.A., where the Wright brothers first flew a glider, an early type of airplane without an engine, in 1902. Campbell tries out a replica (a perfect copy) of the glider to see if he can fly it.

8 A Read about an online survey and then read a post by a commenter. What is the survey about, and what does the person think of it?

World Changers

We asked 15,000 people from 15 countries to name the most important inventions in history. Here are the top ten:

1 wheel
2 telephone
3 antibiotics
4 language
5 airplane
6 electricity
7 refrigerator
8 Internet
9 engine
10 iPhone

I think the list includes some very important inventions, but, in my opinion, there are also some strange choices. Some of them, e.g., language and electricity, aren't inventions at all. These are discoveries of natural things and shouldn't be on this list. I'm also surprised that the toilet and the printing press aren't in the top ten. For me, these are essential. Without the toilet, there would be a lot more disease, and, without the printing press, modern communications would be very different: we would have fewer books, magazines and newspapers. Also, I'm amazed that the iPhone is number ten! How many people in the world actually have an iPhone? It seems strange to include it in a list of basic needs like the wheel and antibiotics.

KON-TIKI

In the middle of the twentieth century, the Norwegian explorer and writer Thor Heyerdahl developed a theory. He believed that people from South America traveled to Polynesia 1,500 years ago and settled there. At the time, very few others believed his theory. They thought the journey was too difficult without modern technology. While others were discussing the theory, Heyerdahl decided to test it.

Using only materials and technology available to the people of that time, Heyerdahl and his team of five sailors (and a parrot) built a wooden raft.* On April 28, 1947, they left from Peru and crossed the Pacific.

While they were sailing, huge waves crashed into the raft, and whales and sharks came close. 101 days and 4,300 miles later, they arrived in Polynesia. At the time, no one knew this type of journey was possible. But perhaps the most amazing thing about the journey was that Thor Heyerdahl didn't know how to swim!

Heyerdahl later wrote a book about the journey, and, in 2012, a Norwegian movie called Kon-Tiki came out, based on the trip.

Hi Paolo,

I hope you're well. I've just got back from my trip to Poland. It was wonderful. First, we flew to Warsaw. We were only there for two days, but we managed to see lots of interesting sights like the Royal Castle and the National Museum. Then, we had a day in Kraków, which was beautiful, especially the huge square in the Old Town. Unfortunately, after a while, it started raining, so we spent the afternoon chatting with locals in a bar. After that, we took a train to Łódź. I loved it. We visited various museums and walked along the famous Piotrkowska Street. Finally, we caught the plane back home. It was a great trip, and we met lots of really friendly Poles, who promised to visit us in Spain!

Love,

Irina

G present perfect + for/since
P sentence stress
V health

Get moving!

A lot of us spend most of our working day sitting at the computer. If you add this to the seven hours we spend sleeping, we could easily find that we spend nearly two thirds of our day without moving at all. We all know that exercise is good for both the body and the brain. Even a small amount of exercise every day can help us to feel happier and more relaxed. So, how does the world stay in shape? We've looked at some of the latest exercise trends from around the world.

TOWERRUNNING China

Have you ever worked in an office building and wondered how you can stay in shape? Perhaps you should try towerrunning. It's a sport you can do in the skyscrapers of almost any big city, but Asian cities can be particularly good. All you need to do is start at the bottom of an office tower and run up all the stairs until you get to the top. Towerrunning has become popular all around the world with important races taking place in some of the world's tallest towers, like Taipei 101, the Empire State Building in New York, and the China World Trade Center, Beijing.

PILOXING® USA

If you enjoy dance classes like Zumba, but you also want to get rid of your anger, then PILOXING® might be for you. PILOXING® started in the U.S., but has traveled quickly to countries like the U.K. The sport is a mixture of boxing, pilates and dance. PILOXING® uses the power and speed of boxing while building your muscles and strength with pilates. All of this happens to non-stop loud music, and you learn some great dance moves, too.

PADDLEBOARDING Brazil

When it comes to the end of a long day, what could be better than a paddleboard on the ocean? It might look easy, but paddleboarding is a tough sport. You need to be strong to keep your balance. However, if you bring your board down to the water at "golden hour" just before sunset, the water is calm and the ocean will make you forget all your problems.

2 What does she say about Colombian food and Colombian cooking?
3 What food did she try in the U.S., and who made it?

How important is food in your life?

Fernanda Huerta-Gonzalez, from Colombia, talks about food.

In my late twenties, I moved from my home in Medellin, Colombia, to the United States to continue my studies. It was a good move, but I missed my family and friends. I also missed Colombian food. In my country, we have a lot of special dishes like mondongo and peto, and we take our time preparing food. People say we cook with love!

While in the U.S., I met other international students, and, twice a month, we got together and cooked for one another. It was wonderful, and I tasted food from many countries: Libya, Poland, Tunisia, Peru and Japan. I also made many good friends. My time in the U.S. taught me the importance of food as a part of culture and a way to bring people together.

I moved to Turkey in July to go to Bilkent University, and I am really enjoying the experience so far. It's been a fantastic year. I've really enjoyed living somewhere so new and exciting, but I miss my family and friends at home. I've met lots of people, and I love living in this big city. There is always so much to see and do, and Turkish people are so friendly. It's very different from living at home. When I first arrived, I used to get lost around the city. Now, I enjoy exploring and finding out about new places.

Hidden Treasure

In 1988, U.S. millionaire Forrest Fenn was diagnosed with cancer. Thinking that his life was nearly over, he wanted to leave something to the world. Then he had a really interesting idea. He decided to fill a wooden chest with treasure and hide it.

He included old gold coins, ancient animal figures and antique jewelry, all covered in gold dust, and left the chest somewhere in the desert, probably in New Mexico, where he lives. Then he published his autobiography and included in it a poem that contained clues about where the treasure was hidden. Against all expectations, Fenn recovered from cancer, so he has lived to see the success of his plan.

He says his idea was to provide people with an adventure: hunting outside, with the chance of getting rich. He loves stories and adventures, and he clearly enjoys the attention his plan has brought him. Every few months he releases a new clue, which keeps treasure hunters interested. It seems it is working: he has received more than 13,000 emails from people who want more clues, as well as 18 marriage proposals! There are blogs that describe Fenn's treasure hunt, and tourism in the area has increased, thanks to people who want to find the chest.

Fenn was originally from a poor family in Texas. As a child, he spent his summers in Yellowstone National Park, which is where he first discovered his love of the outdoors. After a career in the Air Force, he eventually opened an art gallery in Santa Fe, making his money by buying and selling paintings. He also became known for organizing amazing parties that were attended by all kinds of famous people. Now he lives with his wife, with whom he happily looks on as treasure hunters arrive in his hometown.

Always write down multi-word verbs in example sentences: I wake up at 7 a.m. Write some multi-word verbs that you know. Ask your partner to think of example sentences.

SPEAKING

While people used to think the profession was fairly secure (the sick and the old will always need care), these days it has become really clear that the job is changing. Working conditions are getting harder, but the pay is not increasing.

C Choose a job in Exercise 7 or your own job/future job. Write the first paragraph of an opinion piece saying why the job deserves a higher salary. Include the words in bold above.

Anaconda!

Anthropology student Marisa Evangelou talks about how she came face to face with an anaconda in the jungle in Peru.

I was traveling in the Amazon in Peru, and my plan was to spend some time with one of the tribes there. They live in simple huts deep in the jungle, and I traveled with a guide on a small boat for hours to get there. As we traveled, the sounds of the jungle grew louder and louder. I could hear monkeys howling and laughing and the songs of tropical birds. It was hot and humid, and I was covered in mosquitoes.

The days I spent with the tribe were some of the most wonderful days of my life. We spoke very little, but I helped the women prepare meals, played with the children, and learned about the plants they use for medicine. On my last day, one of the men called to me to follow. He spoke a little Spanish and told me the medicine man wanted to thank me for my stay and welcome me into their tribe. They planned a ceremony for me, but I would need to choose between life and death. Was I happy to do that?

I agreed and followed my new friend into a clearing in the trees. He asked me to shut my eyes. I could hear feet approaching me. "Are you ready?" he asked. I knew that my answer would probably change my life. "Yes," I whispered, with my eyes still closed. Soon I felt a heavy weight on my shoulders. I slowly opened my eyes to find a huge anaconda snake staring me in the face. I froze with fear, and the snake moved her head closer to my neck.

I knew that with one move she could kill me, and to make things worse my "friend" smiled and told me the snake was very hungry. "Breathe," he said, "make her your friend." I didn't have a lot of choice, so I took a deep breath and tried not to scream. I could feel my feet sink into the ground. I breathed again, and slowly a strange thing started to happen. The snake lowered her head and rested it on my arm. I had passed the test.

Day 4

Today was our final day trekking along the Great Wall of China, and it was probably one of the hardest days we've had. Today we walked for more than 12 km over 8 hours in very hot and humid temperatures. We climbed thousands of steps, and some parts of the Wall had no sides, just a very long drop on either side. It was terrifying. However, the views were spectacular, and, when we finally reached the watch tower, where we stopped for lunch and took some photos, we all felt incredibly proud of what we had achieved. Sitting on top of the Wall, looking down on the fields and listening to the silence is a feeling I don't think I'll ever forget.

WRITING

USING FORMAL EXPRESSIONS

8 A Read the email. Why is Kristina writing? What information does she want to know?

Dear Sir/Madam,

I am writing to ask for some more information about your bed and breakfast. I am planning to stay in Malta for one month to study English, and I am interested in reserving a room. However, before I do that, I would like to check some information. First, is it possible to travel easily into the center of town by public transportation? How much does it cost? Second, my course finishes in the evening, so I would need to walk home alone. Are the streets around the area where you are located safe at night? Finally, since I plan to stay for the whole month, I would like to know if it is possible to have a discount on the price. I look forward to hearing from you.

Yours faithfully,

Kristina Paoli

B Is the language in the email formal or informal? How can you tell?

C Find formal expressions in the email that have similar meanings to the informal expressions in the table below.

| Talk to you soon | |
| Best wishes | |

D Imagine you are going to spend a month in another city studying English. Where would you go? You need some information. Write a formal email to the school. Include these things:

- the reason for your letter
- a question about the language program
- a question about the housing/accommodation
- a request for information about the city

In more formal emails, if you know the name of the addressee, you close with "Sincerely," (American English) or "Yours sincerely," (British English); otherwise, "Yours faithfully" is used.

Make the Punishment FIT THE CRIME

A man is caught stealing books from a bookstore. The judge asks why he did it, and the thief says he loves books. What is the man's punishment? A prison sentence? A big fine? No. The man is sent to read stories and books to hospital patients. He enjoys the job and continues to do it for many years!

Welcome to alternative sentencing programs. Instead of traditional punishments, criminals get the punishments that fit their crimes.

What other examples of alternative sentencing are there? Two boys were caught writing graffiti on a wall. The normal punishment for this is a fine, but in this case the boys were told to do community service. They cleaned seventy walls in three weeks.

A shoplifter was caught shoplifting three times in one year in a small town in the United States. What was her punishment? She was sent to speak to store owners. She gave advice on how to stop shoplifters. In one month, she spoke to the owners of forty stores and told them all about the techniques that shoplifters use. It was a great service to the community because, after that, shoplifting almost disappeared from the town.

What about more serious crimes? Is alternative sentencing possible for crimes like theft or credit card fraud? It depends on many things. Who are the criminals? Are they young? Is this their first crime? Can they change their way of life? One recent story suggests it is possible.

A thief stole seventeen cans of paint. Instead of going to prison, he was told to spend several weeks painting local schools, a library, and other public buildings. He enjoyed the work, and now it's his job.

COMMENT

One thing that makes me really angry is when people leave garbage on the streets and on the beaches. The problem is that nobody comes to clean it up. I go out every morning and collect litter that has been left on the beach. Nobody pays me for this. I do it because I love the beaches here. Every year there is more and more litter, and the beaches get dirtier and dirtier. I just don't understand it. I think people who litter should pay a fine, and the police should make them come with me in the mornings and clean up all the litter.

Social Media as a Force for Change

For some people, using social media might be a good way to keep in touch with friends, chat about the latest music download, or play games with each other. But young people also use social media to change the world. 43 percent of people are 25 years old or younger, and many of these young people use mobile technology. If this generation isn't happy about something, it won't wait for politicians to change it; it'll use social media to change things itself. These are some examples of how young people from around the world use technology and social media to really make a difference.

READING

2 A Read the introduction to an article and answer the questions.

1 What kind of situations do you think people can change by using social media?
2 How do you think they might do this?

B Read the rest of the article. Does it mention your ideas?

C Work in pairs. Answer the questions.

D Work in pairs. Discuss. Which examples in the article do you think are good uses of social media? Would you use social media for these kinds of things? Why/Why not?

Social Change

Social media sites have been very important for political protests and social change around the world. Large groups of people can now quickly organize themselves to protest against governments and use media to show the rest of the world what's happening. Groups like OccupyWallStreet build online communities that try to fight against what they see as an unfair global economy.

Online Petitions

13-year-old McKenna Pope saw that her younger brother enjoyed cooking and wanted to buy him a toy oven as a present. She went online, but found that she could only buy toy ovens designed for girls. She decided to start an online petition to Hasbro toys asking them to make toy ovens with pictures of boys on the package. In less than a month, her petition received 45,000 signatures and Hasbro decided to change the packaging for their ovens.

Raising Money

When teenage bullies in New York filmed themselves making their school bus driver cry, they uploaded the video to YouTube, and it went viral. Max Sidorov, a 25-year-old Canadian man, saw the video and was shocked. He started a campaign using social media to raise money to give the bus driver, 68-year-old Karen Klein, a vacation.
He wanted to raise $5,000. However, within three weeks, the campaign raised more than $600,000. When Karen received the money, she used $100,000 to set up the Karen Klein foundation to try and stop bullying across America.
So, whatever your problem is, if you use social media, you'll find people who will help you change the world.

READING

2 A Look at the picture. Do you think that people waste a lot of time on the Internet when they should be working? Read the text to find out.

Stop wasting time!

Many of us find it difficult to concentrate on Fridays, so it's no surprise that nearly half of us waste our time at work on Friday afternoons by looking up funny news articles on the Internet, watching silly cat videos or planning our next vacation. But, unfortunately, the problem isn't just a Friday problem. People are wasting more and more time being distracted by the Internet and social media when they should be working or studying. A report has shown how computer users waste up to eight days a month on the Internet. Most of the people who were questioned said they were distracted "all or most of the time" when they work or study online. The study showed that the Internet can be bad for relationships, too, since people argue with their partners who spend too much time in front of their computer or mobile device. Luckily, there is a simple answer to the problem: get off the Internet and get on with life.

B Answer the questions.

1 What is the problem with Friday afternoons?
2 What kinds of distractions does the article talk about?
3 How much time do people waste not working?

VOCABULARY
MOVIES

1 A Look at the movie posters and match them to the types of movie in the box. Which ones fit more than one category?

Mandela: Long Walk to Freedom is a biopic and a drama.

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| an action movie | a comedy | a science fiction movie | |
| a (historical) drama | a horror movie | a thriller | |
| a documentary | a biopic | a blockbuster | a cartoon |

B Work in pairs. Discuss the questions.

1 Can you think of examples of the other types of movies in the box?
2 Have you seen any of the movies in the posters? What did you think of them?
3 What's your favorite type of movie?

READING

2 A Discuss in pairs.

1 Can you name any movies that have been very popular recently? Why do you think they were so popular?
2 Do you think blockbusters have a "formula" (fixed rules for writing them)?

B Read the text to find an answer to question 2.

How to Write a HOLLYWOOD BLOCKBUSTER

Look at any list of Hollywood's biggest movies. What do you see? First, most use myths. The heroes' lives are world-shaking stories, part Bible, part fantasy. Myths are useful because they travel across cultures; and the biggest movies are seen everywhere, from Belgium to Bali to Brazil.

Related to myths is setting. Blockbusters are often set in amazing, alternative worlds. Avatar takes place in a natural paradise, but the movie involves blue people who can fly. Harry Potter goes to a British private school, but it's full of monsters and wizards.

Not all blockbusters need monsters, but the heroes and their opponents must be strong. The opponent might be an evil wizard (Voldemort in the Harry Potter movies), a cat-stroking genius (James Bond movies), or something inhuman and almost unstoppable (dinosaurs in Jurassic Park). If it's human, the bad guy needs good lines. Some phrases in movies are more memorable than the movie itself!

What about structure? Blockbusters come in three parts. The first act introduces the main character and the problem he/she faces. The second act sees the character trying to solve the problem, but failing. In the third act, the character finally defeats the opponent.

The third act is also where the biggest set piece happens. Set pieces are action scenes—a huge battle (The Lord of the Rings) or a car chase (Jason Bourne movies)—and they are big, expensive and memorable.

Include all of the above, find a studio and a director, and see your movie light up the world!

THE BIGGEST-SELLING MOVIES

1 Avatar (2009) - $2.8 billion
Famous line: "Out there is the true world, and in here is the dream."

2 Titanic (1997) - $2.2 BILLION
Famous line: "I am the king of the world!"

3 The Avengers (2012) - $1.5 billion
Famous line: Steve Rogers: "Doctor Banner, now might be a good time for you to get angry." Bruce Banner: "That's my secret, Captain: I'm always angry."

4 Harry Potter and the Deathly Hallows—Part 2 (2011) - $1.4 BILLION
Famous line: Harry: "We have to go there now!" Hermione: "We can't do that! We have to plan!" Harry: "Hermione! When have any of our plans ever actually worked?"

In the U.S., a billion is a thousand times a million, while in countries like Colombia, a billion is usually a million times a million. Both definitions coexist in British English, where a billion originally meant a million times a million.

3 Find words in the text that match the definitions below.

1 a very old story about gods, magical creatures, etc. (paragraph 1)
2 the place or time in which the events of a movie or book happen (paragraph 2)
3 someone who is competing against you (paragraph 3)
4 the way in which the parts of something are organized (paragraph 4)
5 a short part of a movie, where the events happen in one place (paragraph 5)
6 a movie company or the place where movies are made (paragraph 6)

4 Discuss with other students.

1 Do you think it's easy to write a blockbuster if you follow the "rules" in the text? What might be difficult?
2 Have you seen any of the top four biggest-selling movies? If so, do you think they follow the "rules"? Did you enjoy these movies? Why/Why not?

Internet Fame

The Internet has changed the meaning of "celebrity." In the past, you had to be a successful actor, musician or athlete to be famous. Now all you need is the Internet. In 1968, artist Andy Warhol said, "In the future, everyone will be famous for fifteen minutes." With the invention of the Internet and YouTube, maybe that time is now. Now, a kid with a webcam can become an instant movie star, and even a cat with a grumpy face can make their owner famous. When Tabatha Bundesen's brother posted a photo of their cat on the Internet, Grumpy Cat became an overnight Internet sensation and later a company worth more than $1 million. Tavi Gevinson was twelve years old when she started her own fashion blog, but she quickly found herself on the front pages of newspapers and magazines and interviewed on television. These are the new superstars, celebrities of the future.

REFLECTIONS | CHILDHOOD AMBITIONS

How have your childhood ambitions changed? We asked people the following questions: What were your childhood ambitions? What do you do now? And what do you hope to become in the future?

Damien (31), Slovenia:
As a child, I always wanted to be a teacher. Both of my parents were teachers, and they inspired me with a love of learning. Now, I have achieved that dream. I teach geography, history, art and sociology to 12–15-year-old students at a secondary school here in Ljubljana. I love working with children. It's much better than an office job. But now I'm planning a career change. I want to open my own school. First, I'm going back to college to take some management classes. I hope to learn about the business side of owning a school. Next, I'll look for a building. I already have two teachers who want to work for me: my parents!

| ? | Does he live with you?Where do the workers have lunch? | Is he living with you?Where are the workers having lunch? |

Use the present simple to describe something that is always or generally true.
It is common to use these words with the present simple: sometimes, usually, every day, often.

I usually get up at 7 a.m.

Use the present continuous to talk about:

- an activity happening right now, at the time of speaking.
- a temporary activity happening around now (maybe at the moment, but maybe not).

| Spelling with -ing Forms | | |
|---|---|---|
| Verbs Ending in: | Rule | Example |
| -e | -e + -ing | take—taking |
| vowel + consonant | double the consonant + -ing | run—running |
| -ie | -ie + -y + -ing | die—dying |

Form the present continuous with the verb be + the -ing form of the verb.
It is common to use these words with the present continuous: now, at the moment, currently, this month.

I'm living with my parents at the moment.

Some verbs are not usually used with continuous tenses: be, know, like, love, understand, want, etc. These are called "state verbs."

I want to go to bed now. NOT
I ~~am wanting~~ to go to bed now.

2.2 Adverbs of Frequency

Use adverbs of frequency to say how frequently you do something. Some of the most common are: never, rarely, occasionally, sometimes, often, usually, always.
There are several adverbial phrases of frequency, e.g., hardly ever, once in a while, every day/month/year.
With be, put the adverb after the verb.

I am always here.
They were usually early.

We usually put the adverb before other verbs.

I sometimes spoke to him.
We hardly ever ate there.

With auxiliary or modal verbs, we usually put the adverb after the auxiliary or modal.

She doesn't stay here. → She doesn't usually stay here.
We haven't visited them. → We have never visited them.
I can help. → I can always help.

Adverbs of frequency can also go at the beginning, middle or end of a sentence.

Occasionally, I go dancing.*
I occasionally go dancing.
I go dancing occasionally.

Always and never do not normally go at the beginning or end of sentences.
Once in a while and every day/month/year usually go at the beginning or end of sentences.
There are other phrases to show how frequently something happens:

every day = one time per day
I have a shower every day.
once a week = one time per week
She writes to me once a week.
twice a week = two times per week
They go shopping twice a week.

| Positive |
|---|
| I like singing/meat.I absolutely love swimming/tennis.I'm interested in running/beach vacations. |

Note: We can also use like + infinitive.

| Negative |
|---|
| I can't stand smoking/computers.I don't like working/rock music.I hate watching TV/films.I don't really like working/fruit. |

|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| + | | I | 'm | spending | the day with my grandmother on Saturday. |
| – | | We | 're not | playing | football this evening. |
| ? | What | are | you | doing | on the weekend? |

It is common to use an expression of future time with the present continuous, e.g., this weekend, tomorrow morning, later.

| be going to | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| + | I | 'm going to | take | some time off work. |
| – | They | 're not going to | win. | |

Usually, we can use both the present continuous and be going to to talk about plans.

I'm going to meet my girlfriend later.

But there is a small difference:
For plans that involve other people and have a fixed time and place, the present continuous is more common.
We're having a barbecue on Saturday. (We have invited people, bought food and drinks, etc.)
For plans that do not involve other people, be going to is more common.

I'm going to stay in and read a book.

When be going to is followed by the verb go, it is possible to omit go to.

I'm going to (go to) the movies.

GRAMMAR

4.1 Present Perfect + ever/never

| Present Perfect: Positive and Negative | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| + | I/You/We/They | have ('ve) | finished | the project. |
| | He/She/It | has ('s) | | |
| – | I/You/We/They | haven't/(have never) | visited | Mexico. |
| | He/She/It | hasn't/(has never) | | |

| Present Perfect: Questions | | | | Short Answers | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Have | I/you/ we/they | (ever) played | chess? | Yes, | I/you/ we/they | have. |
| | | | | No, | | haven't. |
| Has | he/she/it | | | Yes, | he/she/it | has. |
| | | | | No, | | hasn't. |

Note: The present perfect is not that common in American English, which tends to use the simple past.

The past participle is verb + -ed for regular verbs. For a list of irregular verbs, see page 127.

Use the present perfect to talk about past experiences without saying an exact time.

I've been to Warsaw.

When we want to say an exact time, we use the past simple.

I went to Warsaw in 2007.

Use ever with the present perfect to mean "during your life until now." Never is the negative of ever.

Have you ever visited Madrid?
She's never been to a nightclub.

Spoken grammar 1: When we are asked a Have you ever …? question, we often reply: No, never instead of No, I haven't.

A: Have you ever been to the Maldives?*
B: No, never.*

Spoken grammar 2: When we want to repeat the same Have you ever …? question, we usually say Have you?

A: Have you ever been to Zurich?*
B: No, have you?*

4.2 Can, Have to, Must

Use modal verbs can/can't, have to/don't have to, must/mustn't to talk about present obligation. Use can to talk about something that is possible/allowed.

You can use dictionaries during the exam.

Use can't to talk about something that is not possible/allowed.

You can't park here.

Use must/must not/have to to talk about rules or things that are necessary.

We have to study for our exam.
You must return the books to the library before Friday.
You must not chew gum in the classroom.

Use don't have to to talk about something that is not necessary (but it is possible/allowed).

We don't have to be there until eight o'clock. (But we can get there earlier if we want to.)

Use he/she has to in the positive and he/she doesn't have to in the negative.

She has to pay for the exam.
He doesn't have to do any extra work.

Note: In American English, must is not used that often to express obligation or necessity. It is more often used to express a logical conclusion, e.g., He's never late; something must have happened., The computer won't turn on; the power must be out. The contraction mustn't is rarely used.

GRAMMAR

5.1 Past Simple and Past Continuous

| | Past Simple | Past Continuous |
|---|---|---|
| + | I watched a movie yesterday. | I was watching a movie yesterday. |
| – | He didn't play here. | He wasn't playing here. |
| ? | Did you talk to John? | Were you talking to John? |

Use the past simple to talk about completed actions.

I ate a salad last night.

Use the past continuous to talk about actions in progress at a particular time.

At 8 a.m. yesterday, I was traveling to work.

I was sleeping → → → → → → →
11 p.m. the thief entered (3 a.m.)
past — present

It is common to use the past simple and the past continuous together to tell stories. The past continuous describes an action that starts first, but is interrupted by a second action. Use the past simple for the second (usually short) action.

What were you doing when the bus crashed?
I was sleeping when the thief entered the house.

It is common to use when or while to link the two actions. Use while before the continuous action.

While I was sleeping, it started to rain.*

Use when before the continuous action or the short action.

When we were talking, the bus appeared.*
We were talking when the bus appeared.

Do NOT use while before the short action.

I was sleeping ~~while~~ it started to rain.

5.2 Verb Patterns

Sometimes we use two verbs together.

I love playing football.

After some verbs, put the second verb in the infinitive with to.

She decided to go to Mexico.
We need to make a phone call.

After some verbs, use the -ing form.

I enjoy running.
They avoided traveling by bus.

| Some Common Verb Patterns | |
|---|---|
| Verb + -ing | Verb + Infinitive with to |
| enjoy | choose |
| finish | hope |
| avoid | expect |
| imagine | would like |
| stop | decide |
| like | seem |
| don't mind | want |
| spend (time) | need |
| | help |
| | promise |

Many verbs that show preference (things that we like or don't like) are followed by -ing, e.g., like, enjoy, don't mind.
After some verbs, it is possible to use the -ing form OR the infinitive with to, e.g., love, hate.

I love dancing. I love to dance.
I hate getting up early. I hate to get up early.

There is little change in meaning.

GRAMMAR

11.1 Present Perfect + Just/Yet/Already

It is common to use the present perfect with just, yet and already.
Use just to talk about something that happened very recently.
Put just before the main verb.

I've just passed my driving test!
We've just got back from vacation.

Use yet in negative sentences and questions to talk about something that hasn't happened, but you expect it to. Put yet at the end of the sentence.

A: Are you ready?*
B: No, we haven't finished yet.*
A: Have you reserved a table yet?*
B: No, not yet. I'll call the restaurant in a minute.*

Use already to talk about something that happened, maybe before you expected. Put already before the main verb or at the end of the sentence.

I've already had four cups of coffee this morning.
He's found a job already!

Spoken grammar: It is common to use not yet as a short response to a question. It means we expect to do something soon, but we have not done it.

11.2 Real Conditionals + If/When

| If/When | + Present | + will/won't + Infinitive |
|---|---|---|
| IfWhen | you don't study,the movie finishes, | you won't pass the exam.I'll turn off the TV. |

Use If/When + present + will + infinitive to form a real conditional.
There are two clauses: the if/when clause and the main clause. You can reverse the order of the clauses, but the if/when clause always uses the present tense.

(if/when clause) (main clause)
If we see Ann, we'll ask her to call you.
NOT ~~If we will see Ann, we'll ask her to call you.~~

(main clause) (if/when clause)
We'll ask Ann to call you if we see her.

Use real conditionals to talk about situations in the future and their consequences. Use if for a situation that is uncertain. Use when for a situation that is certain.

If I pass my driving test today, I'll be very surprised. (I'm not sure about this.)
When I pass my driving test, my father will buy me a car. (I'm sure about this.)

It is also possible to use may/might/could/should in the main clause instead of will.

If it's sunny, we might have a picnic later.*
When they arrive, they should call to tell us.*

11.3 Giving Opinions

| That's right.That's true.Definitely. | I totally disagree.I'm not sure about that.I don't think so. | I think …I don't think …In my opinion … |

To sound polite, use I'm afraid and I'm sorry, but … when you disagree.

I'm afraid I totally disagree.*

GRAMMAR

12.1 Reported Speech

| Direct Speech | Reported Speech |
|---|---|
| present simple → "I play the guitar." → | past simple She said she played the guitar. |
| present continuous → "They are watching a movie." → | past continuous He told us they were watching a movie. |
| will → "I'll call you later." → | would She said she would call me later. |
| can → "He can work until 9:00." → | could She told me he could work until 9:00. |

When we report speech, the pronouns sometimes change.

"I eat meat." → He said he ate meat.
"We'll help you tomorrow." → They said they would help me tomorrow.

Use reported speech to tell someone what another person said.
It is common to change the verb tense/form when we report speech.
It is common to use say and tell to report speech.
Tell is followed by an object.

He told me (that) he was hungry. NOT
He ~~told that~~ he was hungry.

Say is not followed by an object.

She said she worked in France. NOT
She ~~said me~~ she worked in France.

When the present simple is used to describe a habit, we don't need to change the verb tense in reported speech.

"I get up at 6 a.m." → She said she gets up at 6 a.m.
"We don't eat meat." → They told us they don't eat meat.

12.2 Hypothetical Conditionals for Present/Future

|---|---|
| If I had more money, | I would buy a car. |
| If I wanted a job, | I would look for one. |
| If I were famous, | I wouldn't be happy. |

Use If + present subjunctive + would/wouldn't + infinitive to form a hypothetical conditional.
Use hypothetical conditionals to talk about an imaginary situation in the present or future and its consequence.

If I knew the way to the museum, I would tell you.
(I don't know the way to the museum.)

If I won the lottery, I would never work again!
(I'm very unlikely to win the lottery—it's an imaginary situation.)

Would is often contracted (I'd, you'd, he'd, we'd, they'd).
Would not is contracted to wouldn't.

If we had more money, we'd buy a bigger house.
We wouldn't live in the city if we didn't need to.

It is possible to change the order of the clauses. Notice that there is a comma after the if clause in the first example, but no comma in the second example.

If we had children, our lives would be very different.
Our lives would be very different if we had children.

With the verb be it is becoming more common to use was (instead of were).

If he was/were a lawyer, he would tell you what to do.
Use If I were you ... to give advice.

If I were you, I'd tell him your plans. NOT ~~If I was you.~~

Motoboy Brazil

In Brazil, they are called motoboys, and, on average, one of them dies in traffic every day. Foreign correspondent Peter Lane met the motoboys of São Paulo. He learned that accidents are not the only problem—there are also robberies. It happened to Roberto Coelho.

"It was terrible, a really bad time for me. I lost everything. We don't have insurance, and the company doesn't help us." The motoboys usually earn just $450 a month.

Lane asks, "When you know the streets are dangerous, why do you still drive so fast?" Coelho says it's because they often work under time pressure. "We know it's dangerous, but we have no choice."

Lane also spoke to some car drivers. One said, "These motorcycle couriers are so dangerous. They drive too fast, and they don't care about the rules of the road." Another said, "Most of them are just kids. It's no surprise they have accidents."

Once in a while, they try to change the traffic laws—they want the motoboys to drive like everyone else. But the changes all failed, so the motoboys continue to risk their lives in one of the most dangerous jobs in the world.

INTO THE WILD

When Chris McCandless graduated from Emory University, he knew he wanted more from life than a normal career. He gave away his savings—$24,000—to charity, abandoned his car, burned the money in his wallet, and gave himself a new name: Alexander Supertramp. He rejected the modern world and decided to experience life alone and in the wild.

With hardly any equipment or technology, McCandless went into the Alaskan wilderness.* While he was traveling, he met several people who helped him, giving him rides and food. One man even offered to adopt him as a grandson, but McCandless decided to keep going, into the wild.

Eventually he ended up in an abandoned bus, hunting and picking plants for food. While he was living wild, he wrote a journal. It described his day-to-day life and the difficulties and pleasures he had from living in nature. McCandless stayed in the bus for four months, and then his journal stopped. Eventually his body was found by a hunter.

Following a book describing his life, a film came out based on his adventures.

Jockey, France

"Bang!" goes the gun. The gates open, and the horses come running out. All eyes are on them. Money, fame and glory are the prizes.

Horseback riding looks so beautiful that it is sometimes easy to forget how dangerous it is. Life as a jockey is rarely safe, and it usually involves a few broken bones. Once in a while, jockeys even die during a race.

Jill Cleveland spoke to jockey Vincent Dax in France. As a young man, Dax was one of the best jockeys of his generation. He knows the sport is dangerous, but he never worries. "When the race starts, we forget about the danger. We know it's not like riding a bicycle or driving a car, but all we think about is winning."

During his career, Dax has broken many bones, including both arms and one leg, and he once fell off his horse and was knocked unconscious. So why do jockeys risk their lives? "We love racing. We love the speed, and we love the money. Jockeys know the risks involved, but we are good at what we do. If we get hurt, we just get back on the horse. That's life."

RABBIT-PROOF FENCE

It is Australia in 1931. Three Aborigine girls, Molly, fourteen, her sister Daisy, eight, and their cousin Gracie, ten, were taken from their home by government officials because of their race. They were sent to live in a camp far from home. Life at the camp was terrible, and they hated it.

One night when it was raining, the girls decided to escape. They knew that the rain would hide their footprints in the mud, so they began the long journey home. In the desert, they had no food and nowhere to sleep.

They didn't have a map either, but while they were walking, they saw the "rabbit-proof fence," one of the longest fences in the world. It was there to stop rabbits from entering farmland. The girls recognized the fence and walked next to it for 1,200 miles. After nine weeks they got home.

Many years later, Molly's daughter, Doris Pilkington Garimara, wrote a book about the journey, and, in 2002, the story was made into a film, Rabbit-Proof Fence.
